- Speaking with confidence?

A CWiC speaking center.

Regardless of how experienced you are with public speaking, with the help of a trained CWiC speaking advisor, your speeches will be worthy of the Ivy League. A speaking advisor can work with you at any stage of a speech. Advisors are trained in public speaking, and they want to help you design and deliver engaging presentations.

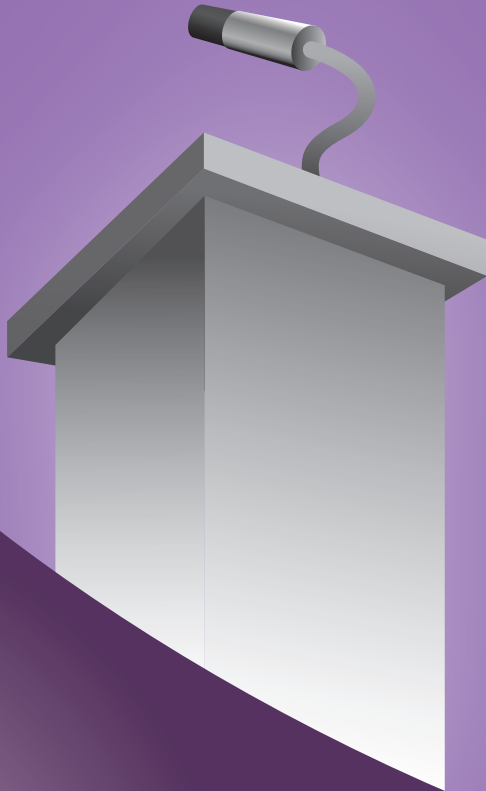

How can you study a subject you're interested in and. . .

- Practice public speaking?
- Get feedback from a professor?
- Get advice from a trained speaking advisor?

Take a CWiC affiliated course.

Faculty in any discipline can affiliate courses with CWiC. In an affiliated course, students meet with a CWiC advisor assigned exclusively to that course in preparation for their classroom speeches. Because the trained advisor understands the professor's expectations, she or he is particularly well suited to help you succeed. Courses designated as CWiC affiliates can be found in the university's course listings and on the CWiC website.

How can you learn more about. . .

- Controlling nervousness?
- Speaking with visual aids?
- Using your voice effectively?

Attend a CWiC workshop.

CWiC's trained advisors facilitate workshops designed to equip students with the knowledge and skills necessary for successful public speaking. Facilitators discuss key principles of public speaking, and participants practice relevant strategies. Workshop schedules can be found at the CWiC website. Groups of Penn students may also request a workshop on a topic of their choice. All workshops are free to Penn students.
